

CANADIAN FREIGHTER
ON FIRE AT DOCK

Parima, Undergoing Repairs at Hoboken, Found to Be Burning at Early Morning Hour.

The steamship Parima, a freighter belonging to the Quebec Steamship Company, was damaged by fire which broke out about 4 o'clock this morning in her forehold. She was tied up at the Fletcher Iron Works in Hoboken undergoing repairs. At 4 o'clock this morning Martin Larson, on deck watch on the Clyde steamship Huron, which was tied up to the north side of the pier, saw smoke curling up forward on the Parima. He notified Patrick Conick, the pier watchman, who turned in an alarm. When the first engines arrived the firemen found the outer plates of the Parima on the side nearest the pier red and glowing with the heat inside. An alarm was then turned in which brought out every piece of fire apparatus in the city.

'Member's' Card in Gambling Club
Run by Witness in Becker CaseGAMBLING JOINT RUNS "WIDE OPEN"
ON SIXTH AVENUE

Becker witness. They were afraid of the consequences and made no secret of their fear. Illustrating the extent of the police knowledge of the place, an Evening World reporter last night stopped a policeman a short distance from it and asked him:

"Do you know a flower and feather place around here?"

"You mean 'Dollar John's'?" the policeman asked.

"Yes."

"Right over the Century Lunch, on Sixth Avenue, and you'll find it," he cheerfully volunteered.

IT'S A "FLOWER AND FEATHER SOCIAL CLUB."

The gambling joint is located, or probably was, in a more accurate statement, for "Dollar John" was not likely to open up to-day, on the second floor of a four-story brick building on the east side of Sixth Avenue, between Twelfth and Thirtieth Streets. The front windows are carefully covered with green shades, on which are painted:

"FLOWER AND FEATHER S. B. C. Inc."

To all appearances the place is a commercial concern, but the S. B. C. on the window shades contains the real gist of what it is. The full title of the place doing business within the Flower and Feather Social Benefit Club, Inc., and the only name on the card required to gain admission is that of Jacob Luban, President. The membership cards, one of which was given to an Evening World reporter by "Dollar John" yesterday, are made out by "Dollar John" in his own handwriting.

Downtown business men and lawyers are among those who frequent the place and there was little secrecy in discussing it in nearby cafes yesterday. When one who sought to gain admission there intimated that he had a pretty good tip on a certain race one of the willing members of "club" offered to take his bet and place it there.

BETTING COMMISSIONER BECOMES SPONSOR.

"Why can't I place it there myself?" he was asked.

"Wait until they know you better," he was told.

Then the member took the bet to the pool room. While he was gone a detective entered the cafe. The man who had sent the bet and the detective conversed until the agent returned. The member knew the detective. When he returned he sauntered to the bar and in the presence of the detective said:

"All right."

Nothing of the gambling house doings was discussed, while the detective remained, but when he left the member explained that he had placed $5 on Lou Blue in the first race. The horse lost, and for further bets the man who lost insisted on going into the gambling house.

"You can't get in without a card," he was told.

"Get a card then," the agent of the place was told.

"I'll take a chance and get you in," the member said after thinking for a while.

At the head of the stairs a guard barred the way. After he was assured he called a second man who passed upon the applicant, and finally the heavy barred doors of the place were thrown open and the representative of The Evening World was admitted. The room was about 140 feet long and 30 feet wide. In one corner "Dollar John" was seated with four sheet writers; in another was a statue table at which ten men were playing. Along one side of the room was a chalk board, and here an announcer was chalking up odds of races here and in Canada. In the rear a small crap game was on.

There were easily 400 men in the room and the heat was intense, but in a little rear room there were thirst assuagers and no liquor license was visible. Iced bottle beer was being served as fast as the bottles could be opened.

Still acting through the member of the club, the representative of The Evening World placed a bet on Sam Jackson in the fourth race and won at 2 to 1. Then he was considered an initiated member of the club, and a man known as Russell was brought forth and introduced. He said he would easily get a membership card for the newcomer.

"John," he called to "Dollar John" and explained that he wanted a membership card.

"Dollar John" made out the card, and, remarking that there ought to be good picking in the sixth race, handed it to the newcomer. He then accepted a seven-dollar bet on "Pine Day" in the last race. A hundred men crowded about the table at every race. Few bets were for less than $5 and many were for larger sums. Hundred-dollar bets were common, and several thousand dollars lay on the table while the wagering for each race was

DISPOSSESSED WHILE HUSBAND SEEKS WORK,
WOMAN COLLAPSES

Little Son Dashes Off in Search of Father as Mother Goes to Hospital.

Delirious from starvation, Mrs. Mary Dillon of No. 225 East Eighty-first Street, was taken to the Reception Hospital to-day from St. Zita's Home for Friendless Women, No. 125 East Fifty-second Street.

A sister found the woman lying on the doorstep of the home last evening, her eleven-year-old son John Jr. was clinging to her and whispering comforting words. Mother and son were cared for in the institution during the night, and Mrs. Dillon to-day told a story of misfortune.

Her husband, John, had been out of work for several weeks, she said. After a vain search for employment in Manhattan he went away a week ago, saying he would tramp through New Jersey and would meet his wife and son in Fifth Avenue near Eighty-first Street this evening.

Mrs. Dillon and the boy were dispossessed from their East Eighty-first Street home yesterday morning. They wandered through the streets until last evening, when the mother collapsed on the steps of St. Zita's Home. When the woman's condition became alarming to-day an ambulance was summoned. As she was being carried to it her boy exclaimed:

"I'm going out and find father. He'll attend to this mighty quick." The sisters tried to hold him, but he twisted himself from their grasp, ran east in Seventy-ninth Street, and soon was swallowed up in the city's rush.

STATE PARDON BOARD OF THREE FAVORED

Constitution Convention Committee

Votes to Take Power From the Governor.

(Special to The Evening World.)

ALBANY, July 29.—The Marshall proposal to take from the Governor the pardoning power and invest it in a pardon board of three members was favorably reported to the Constitutional Convention to-day by the Prisoners Committee.

In commenting on the proposal, Judge Clearwater, Chairman of the committee, said that the Governor was not included as a member of the board because such a step would simply result in shifting to his shoulders the precise burden which it was the purpose of a Board of Pardons to relieve him of. Had such a board been in power at this time, Charles Becker, his friends say, would have been able to appeal for clemency to officials in no way connected with the prosecuting of his case.

Macy's

Mid-Summer
Furniture Sale

CASH makes Macy's Furniture Sale unique in the matter of savings. For sheer, downright economy, combined with quality and broadest choice, there is nothing like it—nothing to equal it—nothing to approach it in the City!

The reason lies in the condition of the 1915 furniture market—a condition that created unprecedented activity in furniture sales, but left the big advantage with Macy's.

Manufacturers needed orders and cash to keep their factories going. Some great stores did place orders—but only to promote sales ON CREDIT. They bought largely, but asked extensions—two, three and six months to pay!

Is it any wonder that Macy's offers—backed by immediate, ready CASH—received consideration above all others?

Is it any wonder that we got all we wanted—lower prices, greater concessions and the pick of the finest stocks in the country?

Prove it! Go elsewhere—select what you want and have it laid aside for you, noting carefully prices and qualities. BUT DON'T BUY—WAIT!

Come to Macy's Furniture Sale—and find the identical pieces here, at a CASH price in which the cost of credit—"charge accounts" or "weekly payments"—does not figure at all. Macy prices will prove how well you could afford to wait!

Make COMPARISON the basis of buying!

Sale starts Monday, August 2nd.
